The Speaker for the lecture was Mr. Abhay Phansikar, who not only shared his 30 years experience in design and development of Embedded Solutions but also explained about his life working in Tata Power R&D, Onward Technologies, Tech Mahindra and Rave Technologies. RFID (radio frequency identification) is a form of wireless communication that incorporates the use of electromagnetic or electrostatic coupling in the radio frequency portion of the electromagnetic spectrum to uniquely identify an object, animal or person. Hence, WIE-IEEE WDC-SPIT kept a talk to help students learn knowledge about RFID.

He explained the importance of it for the people planning industrial jobs in future. Right from RFID tags,itd reader functions, reader anatomy, its applications he explained every details of RFID. Each topic was taught by giving regular life examples so it becomes easier for the students to understand it. . The most common RFID application is for tracking and management. This includes pet and livestock tracking, inventory management and asset tracking, cargo and supply chain logistics, and vehicle tracking. RFID can also be used in retail for advertising customer service and loss control; in the supply chain for improved visibility and distribution; and in security situations for access control. Amazon go is the best example to understand this.

RFID systems are becoming increasingly used to support internet of things deployments.

This seminar bought up new ideas for the upcoming engineers which will surely benefit them in future. The event ended with momento and vote of thanks by Aarti maam to Mr.Phansikar.

Event Name: "The Interplay between Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics" by Mr.Satyanarayan from TIFR

Date of Event: 2018-10-03

Place of Event: SPJIMR Auditorium

In-Charge Member: Dr. Satyanarayan from TIFR

Engineering is one of the most sought out professions in the world today. But Engineering exists primarily due to manâ€™s predominant need to invent. Since ancient times to modern day and age, engineering in itself hasnâ€™t changed much, but the science used in such innovations has been transforming.

On Wednesday, 3rd of October, SPITians had the privilege of attending a lecture, by the esteemed scientist, Dr B. Satyanarayana from Tata Institute of Fundamental Research. Dr Satyanarayana engaged with our eager FEâ€™s, asking them, what they believed engineering was for. The common consensus was â€œproblem solvingâ€•. The professor then went on to explain that the whole art of engineering is merely a tool in the implementation of science. Engineering is the solution for problems we encounter every day. The problems we encounter daily, are products of scientific phenomena that occur continuously in our Universe. Hence the root cause, the actual origin of engineering is Science.

Science is the explanation of everything; every problem, every solution. Mathematics is the mode of communication, engineering is the application and technology is the method of implementation, he summarised. Scientists study what already exists, in nature, all around us, to cater to needs we are probable to encounter in our future. Technologists manipulate nature to devise practical solutions for theoretical questions and engineers exploit technology to deliver optimum results.

â€œScience, technology and engineering are the three surfaces of the same coin!â€• he quotes. He went on to explain the insatiable condition of man that has been the primary cause of all innovation- curiosity. Curiosity is the underlying reason of research. Research leads to formation of scientific principles and that is the direct application of engineering. He emphasised his point with analogy of a tree. Imagine innovation to be a tree, the branches are engineering, the fruit is technology and the roots arise from Science.

Having spoken about engineering and its dependency on science, the professor explained the need of knowing the science behind every innovation; the world is a resource. Understanding the science behind our devices allows us to innovate and use our resources optimally.

Innovation of new technology can always arise from the implementation of old scientific methods. One such example is the discovery of the existence of Higgâ€™s boson aka Godâ€™s particle. During a particle accelerator experiment carried out in Geneva to study the nature of particle collisions, but instead, the experiment paved way to the largest scientific revelation: the existance of Godâ€™s particle.

The technology driving scientific research is lightyears ahead of the technology we interact with every day. But innovation is something that doesnâ€™t always need advanced state of the art technology, but can also be from simple miniature circuits used in laboratories by students every day. Innovation is always to better humanity. To serve to society.

The world is becoming a smaller place. The rate of connectivity is increasing rapidly. The gap between the West and India, now only exists in the form of a timegap. In this growing world, we take many things for granted, like the constant availability of information through Google, the constant provision of cash by ATM's and many things technology and development has provided, that have become an essential part of everyday.

The development of technology has enabled us to follow our heart's desires, wherever they lead us. The only thing that's holding us back, is our safety. Being safe, even a city as modern and developed as Mumbai, is a constant fear. The will to work all night, and strive to perfection, is only hindered, by her inability to go to back home.

Bringing attention to this alarming issue, WIE brought to us, a workshop on self defence. With Padmabhushan Rabindranath Mishra as the instructor, imparting his 36 years of knowledge, the girls learnt various techniques and tricks to help them get out of defenceless situations.

Giving them a hands on experience by demonstrating on his students, he educated the students on various methods they can utilise to set themselves free from the hold of the attacker, and to also injure the attacker. Teaching the students about certain vital points and the techniques to paralyse the attacker within seconds.

Equipped with the knowledge of such self defence techniques, the students can now chase after their dreams, with no fear holding them back.

In today's world women need to continually be on guard against violence from men. Violence can come in a number of ways, places and forms from men. Violence can occur at home in the form of domestic violence as well as out during dates. In addition, assault and harassment can even take place in the workplace.

While violence against women is a serious problem today, women do not have to become victims. By learning simple self-defense techniques, women may be able to protect themselves enough to at the minimum buy some time in order to get help or even fight off attackers to have them leave. Also, using practical common sense methods such as avoid being alone, never go out alone with strangers and never put themselves in potentially dangerous situations.

So bringing attention to this alarming issue, WIE WDC-SPIT brought to us a panel discussion on the topic of 'Security -A different perspective'. The panel included eminent personalities from different fields. Mona Upadhyaya-a Student Counsellor, Suman mam-A profound lawyer, Jaishri Khillari-Runs an NGO-Stree Shakti Sanvardhan Kendra, Gulab Patil-Inspector at DN Nagar Police Station were a part of the panel. Suman mam gave different insights about the various laws available in the constitution for women security and also engaged the audience by asking their opinions and suggestions for new laws which could be implemented for women safety. Jaishri mam spoke about the importance of mindset and ethics and how preventing unsafe situations is the most important thing to keep in mind.Mona mam being a counsellor gave a psychological point of view to the entire discussion and Inspector Gulab talked about the role of police to help women out of these unsafe situations.

Overall the discussion left the audience with a completely different perspective towards security and safety which helps in promoting a healthy and conducive environment for women in the society.

"I am a Woman, Phenomenally. A Phenomenal woman, That's me."

This day called proudly as "International Women's day" celebrates the unique strength of women that is hard to find in the entire human existence. It's a global day and is celebrated in most parts of the world to take conscious cognizance of the unprecedented achievements of women, irrespective of which section of the society they belong to. The International women's day calls for the equality of women in the society where they are often not given that right that she actually deserves.

It is a time for reflection of how far women have come, advocacy for what is still needed, and action to continue breaking down barriers. Signifying justice and dignity, the color purple has become an international symbol for women since the origination of purple, green, and white as a symbol of women's equality from the Women's Social and Political Union in the UK in 1908. Thus this year to celebrate this day the theme was kept as Purple and White.

Aesthetic decorations were kept at the entrance with posters of renowned female celebrities. Over the decades, so many women have made outstanding contributions towards human spaceflight and the world has gained valuable insights from their initiatives. Women who came from an ordinary background, but knew how to dream big and reach out for the stars. The decor was done with the Purple and White theme and the contributions of women personalities from all the fields were honored as their posters were kept as a part of the decor. Along with this the committee gave chocolates to all the teachers and faculty as a token of appreciation. The decorations seemed to be the heart of this International Women's Day Celebration.

There was also a story writing competition named #beingawomanengineer held wherein the participants were asked to share inspiring stories. The best among them, written by Leena Shinde from TE Computers was selected and posted on the official media handles of the committee and will be felicitated with a certificate and interesting prizes. Overall the efforts of the committee were paid off as International Women's Day was a great success.
